

Power Saver Rewards Email/Newsletter Script 8

All of us at [organization name] are excited about our partnership with Power Saver Rewards, a free program that gives you a credit on your electricity bill when you reduce energy use during a Flex Alert.

We've had conversations with many of our members about Power Saver Rewards, including at [insert events where you've met with members/public and discussed Power Saver Rewards]. We often receive questions about the program, like who qualifies and how the rewards system works.

If you're a customer of Pacific Gas and Electric (PG&E), San Diego Gas & Electric (SDG&E), or Southern California Edison (SCE), then you are eligible to enroll in Power Saver Rewards. You can still participate if you generate solar energy at home or are enrolled in any other utility assistance program. There is no income requirement or fee to join, just go to PowerSaverRewards.org and register for free today.

When you receive your bill credit depends on your energy provider. Some give you a credit at the beginning of the following year and others will give you a credit the following month. To know for sure, check with your energy provider.

Thank you for joining us in support of Power Saver Rewards. If you have questions about the program, we are here to help. Email your questions to [email address] and we will respond promptly.
